

Welland Forge Inc.

May 20, 2010

Serianni Construction has been an important contractor to Welland Forge for many years.

When we have had a break down and needed assistance they would provide the men and equipment necessary even on a weekend and work around the clock when required.

There expertise has been called on for building, property and equipment maintenance and construction. They have on occasion taken on the role of primary contractor, supervising and coordinating engineering, heavy construction, environmental and construction trades.

As a professional contractor they have always provided necessary insurance (including named insured) and WSIB documentation on a timely basis.

We have a long history with Serianni Construction and expect this to continue long into the future with the second generation of this locally and family owned business.
